RESEARCH QUESTIONS

How might we improve graphic design within local businesses that cannot afford design agencies?

How can we assist advanced level design students gain professional experience?

THESIS PAPER

CHAPTER 2

ABSTRACT

Local businesses that disregard hiring a graphic designer often struggle compared to their competitors that can afford design agencies. This paper explores the necessity to improve graphic design within local businesses that cannot afford design agencies. Furthermore, it addresses the need to assist student designers gain professional experience. Topics explored include what makes a designer valuable, what they bring to a business, brand success studies, struggles of local businesses, buying local benefits, and what a designer gains from having professional work experience. Evidence shows that pairing advanced level graphic design students with local businesses can improve the success of their brand and increase sales while assisting student designers to gain professional experience and strengthen their portfolios.

INTRODUCTION

Communities often lack good design practices and brand success within their small businesses. Pairing advanced level graphic design students with local businesses can improve the success of their brand and sales. Student designers also gain professional experience and can strengthen their portfolios before entering careers. Since we are apart of a community we must take advantage of the power we have to influence and benefit one another in order to help everyone in the community succeed.

The goal of this research is to solve two problems in a way that is mutually beneficial for local businesses and students. It gives the student designers an advantage in the professional world while local businesses see improved sales and success. There is a dire need to help local businesses improve their brands and success without going in debt hiring a design agency. One way to solve the two problems is to provide a resource for local business owners and designers to connect. Once together, both parties will see the benefits and the overall quality of the local business and student communities will improve.

Significant factors to address include the struggles small local businesses face, what their competitors' brands success looks like, and what is an affordable alternative for small businesses to use. The importance of hiring graphic designers is explored along with what makes them valuable. Particularly, if hiring a designer improves sales and the community. Equally important is the topic on advanced level graphic design students; the challenges graphic design students face, what employers look for after graduation, and the benefits gained when paired with a local business.

SMALL BUSINESS STRUGGLES

Small local businesses face more challenges than larger companies with endless resources.<sup>1</sup> "A small business can sometimes find it difficult to find the financing needed to run and grow the operation."<sup>2</sup> Small businesses tend to work harder to stay in business and generate revenue. There is a rising demand for small businesses to expand the facility, develop new products, execute a marketing program, and meet payroll.<sup>3</sup> Larger companies can afford to hire a design agency or professional designer, whereas many small businesses cannot. Small businesses struggle with attracting top talent that can push them forward. In the same fashion, these businesses struggle to provide employee benefits, unlike larger companies that are more stable. The main struggle for small businesses is finances. Their money may go towards other parts of the business instead of branding and marketing. "Marketing and advertising are an important way for any business to reach new clients," therefore it is important to have marketing play a significant part in the business.<sup>4</sup>

One largely known competitor for retail sport businesses is Nike. Nike has one of the most recognizable logos in the world. Their branding and marketing strategies greatly contributed to their success.<sup>5</sup> "Branding is one of the most crucial aspects that creates and defines a company's identity."<sup>6</sup> A brand should be a lifestyle, give the product meaning, and give consumers a brand that they can identify with. For example, Nike improved their value and desirability by having Michael Jordan represent them. It gave people someone to strive to be like and created an emotional response for people to connect with. Nike is successful because the company spends most of its annual revenues on advertising and promotions.

"In 1997 Nike spent $978 million on advertising, marketing and promotion."<sup>7</sup>

- NIKE

Nike's renown is extremely high because they are keeping their brand visible. Just like Nike, brand success, advertising, marketing, and promotion is important for any business, small or large. Therefore it is important for a small local business to find a way to make brand, advertising, marketing, and promotion a financial focus.

In order to have a local business it is important and useful to know how a company achieves brand success. Brand success depends on a set of characteristics including: Audience Knowledge, Uniqueness, Passion, Consistency, Competitiveness, Exposure, and Leadership. The companies with the best brands have a deep understanding of their target market. "Understanding the target market is critical because it provides direction for the tone and reach of a marketing campaign, along with the overall identity of a brand."<sup>8</sup> Having a good understanding of a local businesses' target market is key to brand success and gaining customers. In order to achieve brand success it is important to have a brand that represents the target audience. A local business without a designer may struggle to develop a strong brand that possesses good design qualities.

VALUE IN DESIGNERS

Having a graphic designer would only be beneficial to a small local business. What makes designers valuable "is their unique ability to join together creativity, inspiration and empathy to craft progressive solutions to problems."<sup>9</sup> "Designers have a creative process they go through in order to produce a high quality product that's going to have a competitive advantage over others like it."<sup>10</sup> Good designers are good communicators and can work well in collaborative environments. Designers have the ability to create what a client wants in a visual way and can bring a different perspective to it compared to a client doing the work themselves. Designers are trained in this area and are more equipped than a client. It is the designer's job to think creatively and have artistic judgments. Local businesses should use a designer to help create a successful brand and other marketing materials.

AIGA discusses their take on design value; they believe design creates value for a business by providing competitive advantage, customer trust & loyalty, and market share.<sup>11</sup>

"Design is an investment in innovative thinking, positioning, branding and communication."<sup>12</sup>

- AIGA

Design thinking can help solve business problems with creative solutions. Not only can a designer help with graphics, they can also think creatively and be a good asset to have on a team.

Even small businesses should use the help of graphic designers to help improve marketing campaigns and sales.<sup>13</sup> A designer should mainly use images and text to present and sell ideas and services. "Why it is a good idea for even small companies with 50 to 100 employees to hire a graphic designer? Because it's economically feasible."<sup>14</sup> Moreover the designer would help improve the promotion of the company.

The benefits of hiring a freelance graphic designer over a design agency are discussed in the blog written by Design Buddy.<sup>15</sup> One benefit is that it can be more affordable than a design agency. Comparatively most freelancers work from home, keeping overhead costs lower. Communication with a freelancer is one on one, making the project easier to manage. Freelancers tend to be more flexible and are more prone to answer evening and weekend emails over a design agency that typically works from 9-5 weekdays.<sup>16</sup> "When you hire a freelancer, what you see is what you get. Usually a freelancer's portfolio consists of projects they alone have worked on."<sup>17</sup> This is ideal because if a local business likes a designer's work then they will most likely be happy with the work that is produced should they hire them. Freelancers vary in price. Sometimes their services can be expensive, however, it is still more cost effective than hiring a design agency.

It is beneficial for a small local business to hire a graphic designer verses not taking one on. They are more affordable than a design agency, they improve the sales of a business and can help create a brand for a business. Keeping things local by hiring a graphic design in the area has many benefits. From a business perspective the top reasons to go local are that it builds community, strengthens the local economy, shapes character, creates a healthier environment, lowers taxes, creates jobs and opportunities, increases the wealth of the residents, enhances local democracy, and enhances the health of the residents.<sup>18</sup> In relation to the topic of designers it builds a sense of community, strengthens the local economy, and creates jobs and opportunities for designers.

GRAPHIC DESIGN STUDENTS

Student designers face a few challenges when getting a degree in graphic design. Many face the problem of not having enough work experience to land an entry level position after graduation. The competition is huge and students are competing with other designers who have already been in the industry for a year or two for the same jobs. Correspondingly, students are left with internships that either don't pay or are low paying compared to a full-time position. Design firms are looking for stand out designers with experience. Simply put, students often do not have enough professional work experience. In David Airey's blog, "What Graphic Design Schools Are Lacking," it has exact quotes from design students and graduates what they think should be included in a graphic design course.<sup>19</sup>

"Design school teaches you how to talk to other designers ... there needs to be an entire course on talking to people who are not designers."<sup>20</sup>

- Stephen Lee Ogden

If student designers were able to work on more projects with real clients for a course during their schooling, it could give them the professional experience they need.

Student designers need experience working with real clients to know how to deal with them. Design firms look for this experience and class projects aren't as impressive to them. Designers need to push themselves to be great and show design firms that they have the skill to deal with real clients. Driven students who possess this experience are ahead of other students without it. "California State University concluded that work experience began becoming more crucial in hiring in 1980."<sup>21</sup> "By 1993, 93% of interns in work-study programs were offered jobs by their employers."<sup>22</sup> A 2013 study by High Fliers Research said college graduates without work experience have "little chance" of getting a job.<sup>23</sup> Work experience is said to be just as important as a college degree and crucial in landing a job after graduation. In light of this, any professional experience a graphic designer gets in school will benefit them in getting a job after graduation.

There are several benefits for student graphic designers that do freelance projects during school. Any freelance projects a student designer partakes in gives the designer exposure and could lead to several jobs. Some benefits include creativity - refreshing to work with people who believe in what they do, networking - it is beneficial to network with non-profits or charitable organizations, philanthropy - it is great to use your talent as a designer to effect change, and portfolio - improves the designers portfolio and is a way to explore different areas of design.<sup>24</sup> Time frames given on class projects are often unrealistic and lack a real-world connection. It is a good idea for student designers to always look for job opportunities while in school. Having freelance projects and working with real clients is a great way to network and improve the student's portfolio.

CONCLUDING THOUGHTS

Small local businesses face many struggles and one of them can be finances. It is clear that brand success, marketing, advertising, and promotion play a huge factor in keeping a brand visible. With that in mind, small local businesses that cannot afford design agencies or professional freelancers have an alternative solution, hire an advanced level graphic design student. If a small local business works with an advanced level graphic design student they can improve their brand and sales. Having a graphic designer on the team is extremely valuable and can help solve business problems with creative solutions. Not only can a designer help with graphics, they can also think creatively and be a good asset to have on a team. It would be ideal for small business to hire a local graphic designer, granted businesses to hire local graphic designers to provide more jobs and opportunities to designers in the area. This would build the sense of community and benefit everyone. Small businesses that cannot afford professional design should consider working with designers, especially those looking to graduate soon. That way they have the necessary technical skills from their classes, but could use the professional work in their portfolios.

Graphic design students face many challenges when trying to achieve an entry level position after graduating. Having professional work experience is crucial to landing a job after graduation. By pairing an advanced level graphic design student with a local business it can help the student get the experience they need as well as help the small business improve their business and sales. Once the parties come together, both start to benefit from one another and great things can happen.

THE SOLUTION

CHAPTER 3

FIXING THE PROBLEM

My goal was to provide a solution to my two thesis questions. By designing a resource for advanced level graphic design students and small businesses I solved these problems. The resource is a website and app for small businesses to use to look for a designer, and for designers to look for a client to work with.

This website and app provides all the available information on job postings and a list of graphic designers. However, it is up to the designer and client to connect and work together.

'POP' APP EXPLORATION

THE GOAL

Explored the 'Pop' app and figured out how it works. After developing screen mock ups for the app, I used 'Pop' to let users test my app.

'POP' APP

The app 'Pop' lets you upload pictures or screens to the app and create hot spots. These hot spots let you move to another screen. This app is easy to use and great for creating an app prototype.

EXPLORATION

- Was able to create some quick sketches of some mocked up screens
- 'Pop' website view, can also explore on phone
- Tested out the scenario of a designer looking for a job, then the designer contacted the client to see if the position was available

PROJECT REFLECTION

CHAPTER 8

REFLECTION

How would you describe your growth as a designer through this project and name one key moment in your process that gave you some significant insights.

My understanding of mobile app and website design has increased. I have gained more skills in developing an app completely by myself verses being in a group project. I have mocked up sketches, architecture, and uploaded screens to the app 'Pop' to practice prototyping an app. I would say I have definitely grown as a designer during this project. I designed about 70 app and 34 website screens within a few days and refined them from there. My ability in producing professional quality work within a short amount of time has increased immensely from when I began the design program.

Many thought I was 'crazy' for tackling on designing a website and app within 9 weeks. However that didn't stop me. I am a efficient designer that loves challenges and is always working to push myself. I have achieved everything I sought out to from the beginning of the term.

One key moment in my process was creating a prototype website using squarespace.com. Designing a website first on squarespace.com helped pushed me in the direction of the style of my website. It was helpful to see a template with all the content I put on there. From there I replicated a similar style for my website and pushed it further.
